Here we are, looking at 2019. Hard to believe. And the world seems to be getting crazier by the day. There is so much bad blood, so much competition, that those in power are all focused more on taking down the other guy than worrying about what is really important. It is tough to get away from the politics. The fly fishing industry is kind of like that, too. Seems like these days the big players are more worried about taking down the competition than actually giving their shops quality customer service and filling orders.

We at CATCH Fly Fishing take a different approach. We don't worry about the other guys. We don't think bad mouthing our competition is nearly as effective as 100% fill rates, amazing designer patterns and great prices. We instruct our reps to focus on one thing: servicing our customers. And back at home base, we focus on making sure your flies are tied right, getting them delivered on time, and getting you the lowest prices in the industry. We feel that sends a stronger message than anything else we could possibly do.

Let's remember why we all got into fishing in the first place – friends, family, natural beauty (and cold beer). At CATCH, we try to balance those foundational ideals with the reason we all got into business in the first place – to make money. That is our job, after all. By making sure that you make the most money by putting CATCH flies in your bins, we get to make a little money, too. Then we all get to go spend time with friends and family drinking cold beer on the river. Profits for your customers and good times are how we want to make fly fishing great again; not smear campaigns and attack ads.

So while we can't totally get away from the politics in this day and age, we don't have to let it creep into everything. As we like to say around here, "Life ain't tough. Be nice and pay your bills. And wear deodorant. The rest should take care of itself." As long as you are putting CATCH flies in your shop, if you're nice and pay your bills, we will take care of the rest – no matter how you smell. And no matter what....

Our Flies Just Taste Better.

-Eric BeeBe, Founder & Chief Fly Designer

SIGNATURE TYERS

They may be crazier than the dude wearing a horse mask and feather boa on the bus at 8:00 am furiously “jingling the change in his pocket,” but CATCH’s Signature Tyers are also the astrophysicists of the industry. Brilliant, wildly imaginative and with a vision for things others can’t comprehend, they are both scientist and artist, if also a little drunk and socially awkward. Good thing you don’t have to talk to ‘em, just reap the benefits of their work by impressing your friends with huge fish and the prettiest fly box on the river.

“West by Midwest” might be the best way to describe Aaron’s fly fishing career and overall outlook on the greatest places for one to explore some of the world’s greatest fly fishing opportunities.

Growing up chasing after the hatchery truck dumping stockers into the marginal trout streams of rural farming communities as a kid to chasing steelhead and hex hatches up and down the Great Lakes tribs as a young adult to moving further west to fish the big rivers and spring creeks Aaron has guided in several states, tied commercially and been involved in fly design for many years-- It’s an obsession.

Regardless of state or season, from Montana to Michigan Aaron is thinking about flies 24/7. “Whether I’m on the water, in the shops or on the vise I’m always thinking about the next new way to create a fly that will delight both the fish and fisherman alike.”

BRIAN SMOLINSKI

Brian J Smolinski grew up in Minnesota fishing for Northern Pike and other warmwater species. In 2001 he moved to River Falls, Wisconsin and began working in a fly shop right near the banks of the Kinnickinnic River. Fishing for stream trout in the northern section of the Driftless Region broadened his love for fly fishing and fly tying. In 2011 the shop closed and he opened Lund's Fly Shop just a block away from the old shop and specializes in fly patterns for trout, panfish, bass, pike, muskie, & more!

SUNNY SUNDGAARD

“The charm of fishing is that it is the pursuit of what is elusive but attainable, a perpetual series of occasions for hope.”

Hanging prominently in his fly tying den, this quote reflects the meaning of fishing for Sunny Sundgaard. And if you asked him what his favorite fish is to target with a fly rod? Carp. Period. Hands down the most fascinating fish he’s ever had the chance chase. Powerful, spooky, intelligent, unpredictable, all describe one of the most underrated gamefish to be targeted on a fly rod. His carp flies are inspired by a deep interest in innovation and functionality. He is consumed by what is possible with carp patterns that work and work consistently.

ADAM HOPE

As a teenager I was on the fast track to a career in professional bass fishing. That all changed on my fourteenth birthday when my father took me to an outdoor show where I purchased my first fly rod... It's safe to say that my life truly began when I was fourteen. I enrolled in the fly fishing school of hard knocks and learned through my own failure. Now over a decade later I can say it has been the most rewarding experience of my life. To this day I've never been on a guided trip and have no urge to. I'm a do it yourself angler at heart. I've caught everything from trout to tarpon but my true love is Cyprinus carpio. This species has me captivated. They are truly amazing and have my utmost respect. The pursuit of carp has consumed my fly fishing career to the point where I've lost all motivation to fish for anything else. I'm excited to be a part of the fly design team here at CATCH. I also blog about my fly fishing adventures at www.thisriveriswild.com , www.flyfishingnation.de , and www.skinnywaterculture.com

ANTHONY MULE'

Anthony J. Mule' 18, shop pro at Riverview Fly Shop in St. Clair, MI. started fly fishing in the canals behind his parent's cottage on St. John's Marsh at an the early age of 8. He taught himself how to tie flies with his father's vise and salt water materials at the age of 12.

He brings his young, fresh perspective to the fly tying community. He's been self-taught at the art of fly tying and is not afraid to try new material and combine traditional patterns to come up with new patterns to expand the fly fisherman's repertoire.

His goal is to expand his talents by getting his captain's license and become a guide to foster more awareness of the fly fisherman outside of the traditional trout fishing and into the vast opportunities offered on the St. Clair waterways.

ALEX LAFKAS

Alex Lafkas has been a fly-fishing guide in Northern Michigan since 2000 and has been fly-fishing the Au Sable and Manistee Rivers for over 20 years. Alex began commercial tying in 1994 for Gates AuSable Lodge in Gryaling, MI. He has learned from the best anglers and guides on these rivers. He is extremely passionate about fly-fishing, guiding, and fly-tying. Alex's college years took him to Montana where he spent days and nights fishing the Yellowstone, Beaverhead, Madison, and many other great rivers. There is no off season for Alex; he takes advantage of the extended seasons on both the Au Sable and Manistee Rivers.

ALLEN GARDNER

Allen Gardner grew up in the Front Range of Colorado fly fishing and loving everything Colorado has to offer. In college, he studied digital marketing and found his second passion. His love for the sport of fly fishing and desire to be a business owner is leading him on an adventure to start a website that is a comprehensive guide to fly fishing the Colorado waters. Allen is a dry fly enthusiast and prefers hunting small streams for any trout that will eat a dry fly. At 26 years old, Allen has a lot of life ahead of him and he is excited to see what opportunities his passions bring his way. Allen loves Catch flies because of their unsurpassed quality and of course Colorado trout think they are the tastiest flies around!

AUSTIN ADDUCI

Captain Austin Adduci is a self taught tyer and fly fisherman born and raised in Chicago. He was introduced to fishing at a young age while on family vacations. Austin could be found sitting on a dock in the Florida Keys drowning frozen shrimp for hours. It wasn't until high school that he picked up a fly rod and the rest is history. He founded Grab Your Fly Charters in 2009. He is the only full-time fly fishing guide in the greater Chicagoland area. He guides the southern basin of Lake Michigan, the Kankakee River, Beaver Island, and the Pere Marquette River. His favorite species to fish for are tarpon, carp, and smallmouth, in that order. He is a supporter of Coastal Conservation Association, the Illinois Smallmouth Alliance, and the FFF.

EDWIN PATRON

Captain Edwin Patron, head guide for Cancun Fly Guides, has been guiding Fly Fishing clients in Mexico since 2003 and has worked in the calm waters of Chetumal Bay near Xcalak, Quintana Roo, Mexico and the border of Belize, the busy waters of Cancun and the pristine flats and channels of Isla Blanca. Cancun and Isla Blanca are now where he calls home since 2005 and he specializes in Fly Fishing in Isla Blanca, Mexico, a pristine area just north of Cancun. When Captain Edwin is not guiding clients, he is fishing or tying flies. Captain Edwin has also developed several fly patterns he uses exclusively in Isla Blanca, especially his Milky Crab, a favorite of bonefish and permit. Captain Edwin speaks Spanish and English and resides in Cancun with his wife and daughter.

BJORN OSTBY

Bjorn Ostby has been around fly fishing since he was old enough to wear a life jacket and drop his dad's fiberglass rods out of the family canoe. Having grown up in the inland northwest for his entire life, Bjorn has had the opportunity to fish the blue ribbon trout streams of Idaho and Montana, the lakes of eastern Washington, and world- renowned steelhead rivers of the Pacific Northwest. Being able to easily access these fly testing laboratories in his backyard has allowed him to conduct plenty of "research." This is evident in the wide variety of flies and in the effectiveness of his creations.

Bjorn's flies are an eclectic mix of modern and traditional materials and designs. His tying interests include everything from size 22 midges to huge articulated, meaty streamers for enticing the most aggressive of fish to turn cannibalistic. When nothing else is working, try one of his flies.

CHRIS MADSON

Chris Madson grew up on Big Goose Creek in the heart of the Bighorn Mountains. At a young age he started fishing and enjoying the outdoors. He has always been an outdoors junky, with a desire for fly fishing and adventure. He received his first fly rod and vise at an early age and was hooked. He began tying simple patterns, but his obsession continued to grow and so did his ability to trick those big fish. He continues to create and tweak patterns to entice all types of fish. As an avid fly fisherman and guide, he has spent most of his life fishing in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Hawaii and Belize, but his true love is the far North regions of Canada, chasing large Pike on the fly.

DOUG HARTMAN

Doug Hartman is an accomplished fly fisherman with more than thirty years of experience fishing in the Rocky Mountain west and Alaska. He has a love for the outdoors, a passion for fly fishing and, equally important, more than twenty five years fly tying experience. Doug excels at combining the tradition of fly fishing with new and innovative pattern designs. He is a certified guide and has introduced men and women of all ages, from elementary students to first-timer fishers in their sixties and every age in between, to this incredible sport. He says there are few things as gratifying as being on a river having a great day when someone comes over and asks him what he's fishing with.... and being able to share that new pattern with a fellow fly fisher.

DYLAN KOBYLESKI

Growing up in the Chicago suburbs had always been very taxing on my soul. It wasn't until rather recently I had found my cure-all. My family had always made the summer migration to Wisconsin's northwoods, where I would jig bait from my dad's rowboat. It wasn't until a few years ago, that I was told I had an addiction to fishing. I had accepted the fact with open embrace and set out to learn all I could. Soon after, I purchased my first fly rod and began trying to help pay for the hobby. I became captivated with the beauty of the brookie on the dry and the savage strike of the muskie. If I'm not behind the vice, I'm wading the streams of Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan, or chatting it up at the only remaining fly shops in the suburbs. In fall, you could find me religiously chasing Milwaukee browns. I have found my true calling and try to make it my every living moment.

ETHAN WINCHESTER

Born and raised in northern Michigan, Ethan has been fishing the area as long as he can remember. Ethan gained his passion for fly fishing after casting his first flies on the legendary Au Sable River. During college, Ethan fished the western Michigan tributaries extensively for trout, salmon and steelhead, spending as much time in waders as in the lecture hall. His love for cold water resources and protecting the fisheries he loves led Ethan to founding and serving as President of the first collegiate affiliate of Trout Unlimited in the nation, Ferris Trout Unlimited.

KIRK SEELEY

Born and raised in Montana, Kirk began fishing at a young age but developed his love for fly fishing on the beautiful rivers and streams of Colorado. In 2015, Kirk joined the team of Cancun Fly Guides and presently manages the marketing functions of the team and hits the water whenever time lets him. Kirk has been tying both freshwater and saltwater fly patterns for the past 15 years and has developed several fly patterns for Cancun Fly Guides that are ideal for the waters of Isla Blanca, Mexico, an amazing fishery just north of Cancun, Mexico.

GREGG MARTIN

My name is Gregg Martin and have been fly fishing since I was 12, or 43 years ago. I began to tie flies shortly after, laughable creations done without a bobbin, often with sewing thread, but adults bought them and I never have stopped for long. A term in the Army and as a BLM Smokejumper in Alaska only slightly slowed down both fishing and tying. I was injured on the job in 1985 and have been fishing from a modified wheelchair ever since, which at times may be an advantage. My wife and I have 3 children, 2 of whom became avid fly fishermen and carpers with a grandson I've been teaching to fly fish as well. They and my other grand-kids are the essence of my life.

JAMES CRANFORD

James Cranford grew up in Miles City, Montana where he developed a passion for fishing at an early age. His passion for tying flies however developed a little late in life, but he quickly learned that he was a natural and started developing his own patterns shortly thereafter. He currently ties commercially for local shops in Montana and is noted for the pattern Cranford's Pandora's Box & Cranford's Soft Hackle Baetis.

JIM PANKIEWICZ “MR. P”

Jim is a lifelong resident of Washington State. His earliest memory is of fishing with his dad. Jim has been an avid fly fisherman and fly tyer since 1971. His patterns, the Carp Carrot and Black Betty, have taken Carp across the world. He created and produced “Lessons from the Carp Lodge”, an original video series demonstrating how to catch Carp on the fly. Look for his videos “The Best Thing About Fly Fishing for Carp” and “Detecting the Take” on YouTube.

JAMES SPICER

James Spicer is a Carpaholic (and admits he has a problem). Carp have completely captured James' attention and no other freshwater gamefish will give him a "fix." James now solely targets carp and anything else is now just a "bycatch." Living minutes from the South Platte River in Denver, James has honed his carp hunting skills on some of the largest and pickiest carp. James has been fly fishing and tying flies for more than 20 years, with 10 of those years dedicated to being a fly fishing guide and fly fishing industry professional.

JOE DIPIETRO

As Joe DiPietro grew up in central-Illinois and central-Florida, he fished every pond, river, lake, swamp, canal, grassflat and mudhole he could manage to find. From his earliest childhood memory of trout fishing a small prairie pond, all of Joe's life has included fishing. During college at USF in Tampa, Joe rediscovered his love for fly-fishing, which he'd first found bream fishing as a kid. As soon Joe earned his degree, he quickly relocated to Southern Appalachia. Today, not much is different. Everything Joe does, both for fun and for a living, involves fishing in some aspect. Joe is a fly-fishing guide for Blue Ridge Fly fishing, on the Toccoa River, near Blue Ridge, Ga.

JOHN “MONTANA” BARTLETT

Little known fact about me. When I hooked and landed my first ever carp on the fly, I made my buddy Justin release it for me. Yes, like most North American anglers I grew up associating words like “Trashfish” and “gross” with carp. Isaac Walton be damned, Americans have long hated the common carp. Fortunately for me, the sound of my creaking bamboo six weight and the furious battle the “Trashfish” gave me convinced me to take them a bit more seriously. Eight or so years later and I am an absolute carp on the fly addict. There quite simply is no other fish that can combine such an interesting method, with such explosive fighting ability, and yet be so difficult to catch. As we always say, and sometimes mean...it wouldn't be nearly as much fun if we caught them all. I live near Portland, OR now with my lovely wife Kelly and two kids, Elia and JJ. JJ touched his first carp at 6 weeks old, and Elia fought her first carp on a Barbie fishing pole at 18 months... my kids are my constant companions and not once have they called a carp “gross”.

JOHN NEWBURY

I have been tying flies and fly fishing for almost 40 years. It is an obsession I cannot deny. In the sixth grade my teachers had a hard time getting me to pay attention in class and pull my head out of a fly fishing book. I must have read them all by the time I was in high school. Sure, the girls got jealous of the time I spent fishing instead of courting them; some even learned to go fishing with me to spend time together, but most couldn't handle the long hours in the wilderness without a shower. Besides, I was there for the fishing.

John also has degrees in fisheries biology/science and works as an aquatic sciences consultant helping to protect and restore our wild aquatic habitats.

JOHN WOOD

Growing up in rural North Texas John learned to appreciate fishing at an early age. From the first time he snuck off to the lake without permission until today, fishing has been the one thing that holds his attention completely. His dad first referred to him as Fishhead in 1969 because that was all John ever thought about. Fly fishing came a few years later in life and all but replaced other fishing. A passion for fly fishing and traveling the USA has allowed John to fly fish in 16 states from Florida to Washington taking numerous species from bluegill to walleye on the fly.

JONATHAN ZUKOWSKI

I grew up in New Hampshire fly fishing the many rivers, streams, lakes, and ponds that surround me. The waterbody that has had the most impact on myself has been the Pemigewasset River, conveniently flowing through my backyard. Fishing for brook trout on this river was what really got me into fly-fishing at the age of 7. My family would take annual trips to Maine to fish for salmon and trout. Each time we would return from a Maine trip I would take to the “Pemi” from sun up to sun down, for days in a row.

KRIS THOMPSON

Kris Thompson's fly fishing roots began at 9 years old, in the Rangeley Region of Maine, in an old beat up canoe on a remote backwoods pond. Through his early adult years he worked at popular fishing lodges in the Rangeley Region, on both the Magalloway and Rapid Rivers. By the age of 20 he acquired his guide license and eventually started a successful guiding business and received his Federation of Fly Fishers casting certification. Today, Kris lives in Rangeley with his loving wife and three children. He has owned and operated Pond in the River Guide Service since 2001.

MARK ERDOSY

I consider myself an equal opportunity fly fisherman. I'll fly fish for anything that swims, but I would have to say that my personal favorite species to target are carp and steelhead. I consider sight fishing to be the pinnacle of the sport and since carp are the smartest gamefish I have ever targeted, they rule that roost. On the other end of the spectrum resides the anticipation of the unknown. Swinging flies for steelhead has captivated me since I set my first sustained anchor. When that fly begins its swing, you can only imagine what is taking place under the water column. When that big pull comes, it releases an entirely different set of feelings compared to when a fish visibly eats your fly. I live for those two moments.

MATT CAMPBELL

When I started my very first job as a young kid, I got a job at a small fly shop near my home and my hobby/addiction was started. I started tying flies for the owner and after tying several flies for bass and having immediate success I was hooked. The shop had a pond out back and a stream beside it where I practiced to improve my skills. When I caught my first sizeable smallmouth bass on a fly rod, I started chasing this wonderful gamefish almost exclusively during the warm Ohio summers. During the long winters I was commercially tying flies and stocking my guide boxes for the next season. I have made some great friends and met people from all over the world. It is an experience that has changed my life and created memories I will treasure forever.

MATT PIKE

Matt Pike came to fly fishing and tying relatively late in life, although that hasn't diminished his passion for the sport, and in some instances has been a benefit in his tying. Matt quickly realized that trout fishing and tying midges and dries were not his forte after the first time he happened upon a carp flat fishing for bass. The carp fly world at that time was small, incredibly unique, and completely overwhelmed with bread flies. That led Matt to experiment (play) at the vise into the wee hours while he dreamt of those slimy golden monsters exploding and churning the nearly opaque and silent lake mud flats as they made the acquaintance of one of his creations at the end of the tippet.

NOLAN MAJCHER

Nolan Majcher lives to fish. His fly fishing career started on the difficult trout streams of Pennsylvania. The wary trout of his old stomping grounds forced him to perfect his craft. To fund his fishing habit, Nolan worked for Orvis as head casting and fly tying instructor. As an instructor he taught hundreds of anglers, both novice and veteran, proper technique.

Equipped with the knowledge to be an excellent guide, Nolan migrated to the fishing paradise of the Yellowstone Valley. His passion for fishing is contagious when spending a day on the water together. Clients love Nolan's laid back nature and no nonsense approach to getting fish in the net. Phil Croff, owner of Croff Craft Enterprises and CC Guide Service, is a custom drift boat designer and builder, avid fly fisherman and guide. Phil grew up in Northern Michigan, fishing the small rivers, streams and lakes in this beautifully pristine area. He has a particular affinity for hunting trophy brown trout at night, which requires tenacious ability, and a sensitivity to their culinary tastes. Being a native to the area, and knowing the terrain and it's inhabitants well, made tying, guiding and boat building a natural choice for Phil.

SCOTT LEWIS

Scott Lewis was raised in Columbia, SC where he grew up fishing ponds and lakes for largemouth bass. He caught his first trophy largemouth at age 12 and began tying flies in 1987. For the past 15 years he fly-fished and guided the tri-state region (TN, NC, and VA), especially the Tennessee tailwaters, and his "home water" is the S. Holston tailwater. Scott quit guiding full-time in 2015 and moved to NW Arkansas, where he is chasing carp, smallmouth, and stripers, and will be exploring the Rockies this year in pursuit of Golden Trout in the high lakes.

TRAVIS HAMMOND

I began fly fishing at age 12 and have never stopped. My first quarry on the fly were panfish and largemouth bass in the farm ponds of the Alabama countryside but I soon expanded my horizons to saltwater species of the Gulf Coast. Eventually I moved to Washington State where I mainly pursued trout for years until I discovered the amazing warm water fishery of the Columbia River Basin. For the last five years I have focused mainly on carp but still do chase trout and steelhead. Sight casting to carp to me is fly fishing in its purest form. It calls on all of your skills for spotting the fish, presenting the fly and detecting the take (the hardest and most rewarding part).

TREVOR “MCTAGE” TANNER

Trevor “McTage” Tanner grew up as a 4th generation fly fisherman chasing high country trout on dries. Fifteen years ago while living in Michigan he discovered that trout are not the only valid fly fishing species and perhaps not even the best. Over forty species later he is of the opinion that the honor goes to the Carp and he now chases them nearly exclusively. In 2011 he teamed up with Clint Packo and they rode “McTage’s Trouser Worm” to the Carp-Slam V championship in downtown Denver.

TROY BASSO

I was born in Michigan and began fishing the rivers of the great north at an early age. Fly fishing came to me early and chasing warmwater fish came soon after that. After a 10 year hitch in the US Army I settled in Tennessee and began fishing and guiding. Along the way I ended up writing for some magazines and that grew to where I have become a nationally published writer with an emphasis on fly fishing. I also teach tying classes from the beginner level up to advanced courses on articulated flies for toothy fish and some saltwater patterns. My website is located at www.troybasso.com

STEPHEN NYMICK

Stephen Nymick began fly fishing at just 7 years old on his local streams in Western Pennsylvania. Stephen started his own business selling his unique patterns commercially while in school. Stephen's passion for swinging flies on a Spey Rod for steelhead really became an obsession and addiction. To him there is nothing more exhilarating than catching giant anadromous fish on large articulated streamers.

NIALL MCCARTHY

Niall McCarthy lives and breathes steelhead. Fishing skating and waking flies and under the tutelage of a local guide; he got his first taste of steelhead on the swing in Oregon on the fabled North Umpqua River. Upon graduation from University of Oregon he moved back to Chicago and continued to swing flies for Great Lakes steelhead. His favorite places to swing flies are on the west coast of Michigan and on unnamed rivers on the Oregon coast. His flies are tied temple dog style but with modern synthetic materials that entice steelhead like no other. They are designed to catch steelhead the world over.

WALTER WIESE

Walter Wiese started fly fishing in the Missouri Ozarks when he was six. Nowadays his home waters are the Yellowstone River, Missouri River, and Yellowstone Park. He has been guiding and outfitting in Montana and the park since 2001, but he still has a soft spot for Midwestern spring creeks, tailwaters, and bass rivers. Walter began tying commercially in 2002. While he likes to design all sorts of flies for anything that swims, his particular specialty is low-floating yet highly-visible and buoyant dry flies that put clients with average or lower skill into fish on heavily-pressured float rivers in the Rockies.

KEVIN COUGHLIN

I grew up fishing on the cheap in southern Baja. My Dad, brothers and I would make trips from Phoenix down there, renting rickety skiffs, catching the big blue water stuff and roosters. I started guiding fly fishing in 2002 while in school at the university of Tennessee. I have guided since then, mostly in TN, but also a bit in the FL keys and in the Carolinas. My passion is developing, mostly saltwater, patterns that actually work in hard hit areas like the Keys, Mosquito lagoon and then some tricky landlocked striper and musky stuff in the TN valley.

JOSH STINNETT

Josh is a Southern Appalachian born and raised trout bum. He grew up fishing small streams for wild and wary brook, brown, and rainbow trout in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park near Gatlinburg, Tennessee. He now spends his summers in his hometown and spends the rest of the year in Johnson City, Tennessee for school at East Tennessee State University. This placed him in the midst of some of the greatest tailwater fishing Southern Appalachia has to offer in the Watauga and South Holston rivers. Because of his widespread fishing background Josh's patterns are a culmination of the qualities needed to catch both finicky tailwater fish and voracious, native brook trout in any stream or river.

ALEX HAIKEN

Alex has been fly fishing and tying since he was 15. Growing up in Fort Myers, Florida, he enjoys catching snook, redfish, and tarpon in the backwaters of Sanibel, Pine Island, and Boca Grande. In high school, Alex tied flies to fundraise for food banks and environmental charities in Southwest Florida. He now attends the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor at the Ross School of Business and has a minor in environmental sustainability. Alex enjoys tying abstract saltwater fly patterns with bold colors and impressions. He seeks to add flavor to traditional fly designs and has great success with his patterns. Find him on the flats of South Florida testing his latest creations in the skinny waters or exploring rivers and streams with his free time in Michigan.

BODEN RUSSELL

My goal is to put more fish in your net by focusing on 2 goals. First, I strive to publish only highly productive patterns that have undergone multiple iterations of design and testing. These are literally the GOTO patterns I'm rigging up with out on the water myself. Second, I seek to promote conservational efforts and mindsets that ultimately benefit fish habitats. In fact, all of my designer proceeds as part of fly sales are donated directly to Trout Unlimited. For more details on my patterns including tips on fishing them, check out my website: <https://brflyfishing.org/>

JOHN SEALS

John caught the fishing bug early when his dad first started taking him to local Chicago area ponds and lakes at the age of 12. Like most kids, his success centered on drowning worms for bluegill, channel cat, bullheads, and small bass. It wasn't until he discovered river fishing for smallmouth bass that his passion was born! John grew up fishing jigs and Rapalas on the Kankakee River for smallmouth almost every week, giving him the chance to learn how to read rivers and properly present to feeding lanes. It was these experiences that would sow the seeds for his eventual love of streamer fishing in adulthood.

DRY FLIES

The mayfly hatches of early summer rival almost every other emergence of species on the planet for eliciting a hunger in lurking predators, except maybe when the sun dresses come out on college campuses about the same time of year. Equally enticing and the subject of desire, CATCH dry fly patterns will land you big fish, while chasing those flowery skirts will only land you an ethics complaint and a bunch of #metoo posts to explain to your wife. So leave the coeds alone and just go fishing, OK?

DRY FLIES CADDIS

Jitterbugging like a meth addict at a job interview, the caddis come pouring from the streamside bushes faster than PBR through a funnel at a frat house. Few things are as fun in fishing as the spastic splash rise you know means the fish are eating caddis. Even though fish are more aggressive on caddis than a pimp asking for his money a second time, they still somehow can tell the difference between a crappy old elk hair, and the real thing. Don't let the fish give you the back of the hand...give 'em a CATCH caddis pattern and you won't even have to ask once.

COMPARADUNS SPINNERS & SPARKLE DUNS

One night I lost myself to the ruby red lips, milky white skin and baby blue eyes of a stripper named Sparkle Dun. Or maybe it was Russell. Anyway, the point is, you'll never have your heart broken by one of CATCH's dun patterns. All of the allure of a hitchhiker in daisy dukes without the terrifying surprise when you find out about the 5 o'clock shadow. These flies are sure to excite fisherman and fish alike.

DRY FLY MIDGES

On a scale of 1 to your willie after the first wet wade of the year, these things are off-the-scale small. But unlike your confusion at why you now have 4 tonsils instead of 2, the fish will have no trouble knowing what to do with these midge patterns. CATCH midges will float higher than a Colorado hippy for such a small delicate pattern, so you'll be sure to see them all the way through the drift until they are devoured by the binging hog at the edge of the pod.

DRY FLY STONEFLIES

These things are so damned realistic I very nearly caught a sparrow on a false cast during the golden stone hatch earlier this year. I'm not kidding. Britten Jay may not be smart enough to take his truck out of reverse at the boat ramp, but dammit, the guy can tie a stone fly pattern. So you just concentrate on not sinking the truck, and leave the stonefly patterns to us. CATCH has the best stone patterns in the industry, hands down.

DRY FLY ATTRACTORS

What attracts you the most? Money? Sex? Power? Food? A good nap? CATCH dry fly attractor patterns are the equivalent of a gold plated sex goddess having a rough sweaty orgy with all the heads of state from the G8 in a feather mattress stuffed with hundred dollar bills before eating a foie gras foot long sandwich and nodding off for a snooze on Kate Upton's soft bosom. You get what I mean. They're pretty awesome.

TERRESTRIALS

I still haven't figured it out. Why in the world the fish will eat a beetle or an ant instead of a mayfly or caddis that perfectly matches the hatch. Could those little creepy crawlers really be that much tastier? I don't know. But I do know that the unique UV dubs and peacock bodies on the CATCH terrestrials might not only Just Taste Better than the other guys' bugs, they might even be better than the real thing.

EMERGERS & CRIPPLES

It's harder to hide an erection in a pair of swim trunks at the Laker Girls annual pool party than for a fish to resist a crippled bug lying flat and helpless in the film. And while you would have no chance with a Laker Girl even if she WAS crippled and floating face down in the pool, the fish will pound CATCH cripples and emergers harder than, well, let's just say pretty hard.

BEADHEAD NYMPHS

Go ahead. Throw on that old brass beadhead that's been in your nymph box all these years. Toss it into that pool and catch that whitefish that's in there with all the trout you can't seem to fool. No? Not what you have in mind. These days, beadhead nymphs are so much more. Tungsten, fluorescents, glass...you name it. CATCH beadhead patterns are the dropper that will not only catch the trout, but won't just serve as a way to snag them in the butthole when you miss the set on the dry fly take. With CATCH patterns, you know it's IN THE FACE every time.

NYMPHS STANDARD

Nothing standard about CATCH's standard nymph patterns. I don't even know why we call them that. We should call them Bad Mothertrucker Nymphs. Or Nymphs – Unf%@$ing Believable. Or Holy !@$% These !@$^ing Mother!@$!ers catch a !@$ton of !@$%4ing fish – Nymphs. No matter what we call them, as long as you call them CATCH nymphs, they are going to fly out of the bins and into fishes' mouths, so just leave the name-calling to the other guys.

MIDGES & CHIRONOMIDS

Good things come in small packages. Yeah, I could never get my wife to believe that either. But unlike what I am trying to sell the Missus, CATCH midges and chironomids are exquisite, finely detailed little works of art that when presented correctly can evoke desire and hunger from even the most chaste fish in the river. After all, it's not the size, but how you use it. Right?

NYMPHS - CADDIS

What IS this? What is thiiiiiiissss?? Open your fly box and wait for the interest of all your buddies to get piqued. Then they move in and start to play with them. With a box full of realistic CATCH Caddis nymphs, there is going to be more groping of your gear than there was in the back of your dad's station wagon after homecoming. But it's ok, you've got plenty, so let your friends go ahead and finger your box.

SCUDS & SOWBUGS

Some would say that Forrest Jay is single minded. He can keep the house clean, but not also do the yard work unless his wife is there to remind him. He can catch a fish, but not keep the flies out of his dog's eye. He can row a boat, but not without having a tree land on it. You get the idea. Fortunately for us, no matter what else he is screwing up, he can tie some amazing sowbug patterns. If you are going to be fishing a tailwater, forget about the grass, the dog, your safety – just make sure you have some CATCH sowbugs in your box.

STONEFLY NYMPHS

When I was talking to the Alzheimer's-riddled old man that stole my g-ddamn shuttle the other day, and wondering if he could find his own ass with a long handled mirror, or if it was even safe for him to be on the water (even with his lifejacket on backwards), he finally said something that made me think he couldn't be completely brain dead. He said, "Boy, yesterday I put on a CATCH rubberlegs, and I couldn't keep the fish off my line!" So, while this dumbass was probably on his way to either a drowning or a good asskicking, at least he proved a point: CATCH stonefly nymphs are so effective, even people with terminal stupidity can catch fish on them!

WORMS

I challenge anyone, anywhere, to fish any fly or bait of any kind against a good old fashioned Folgers can nightcrawler on a Barbie pole and see who wins. While Mattel and Fischer Price sure do make a fine fishing rod, I think we can all agree that the worm is the fishiest thing there ever was. CATCH worm patterns go beyond the chenille-tied-to-a-hook worms we've all become used to. CATCH worms are almost as good as the real thing. Wait for CATCH Barbie poles coming soon!

So good it's as if Alton Brown himself whipped up these eggs on the latest episode of Good Eats. The only thing more exciting than the fact that new episodes of Good Eats are coming soon is the prospect of catching huge Midwest browns, Alaskan rainbows and northwest steelhead on these righteous egg patterns. Save the bacon for yourself, all the fish need are CATCH egg patterns.

STILLWATER FLIES

You know what sucks? Trout fishing in lakes. There. I said it. Stillwater trout fishing is lame. But there is one thing in this world I think is worse. OK, two, if you count the yearly visit to Dr. Lumpy Knuckles for your annual man-walnut exam. But I'm talking about not trout fishing at all! That is the worst possible thing. And whether it is because you don't have a drift boat or the rivers are blown out or you just like to piss on yourself in a float tube, people fish lakes. So you better have the flies they need to do it. CATCH Stillwater patterns can even make lake fishing fun.

STREAMERS

OK, now we're getting down to business. Just like the cool kids sat in the back of the bus so the teachers didn't catch on to their shenanigans, we keep the good shit in the back of the catalog. But instead of hiding Copenhagen or nudie mags, we keep the big flies for the big fish back here. CATCH has by far the most, and the most innovative streamer patterns in all of fly fishing. So, while we hide them in the back, you should put them all out front and center for your customers to see when they first walk in.

BIG BOY STREAMERS

We hold these truths to be self-evident: All men are created equal. Herpes is the gift that keeps on giving. And big fish eat big flies. That is why CATCH's founding fathers are equal opportunity employers, always rubber up in the truck stop parking lot, and have developed the world's nastiest, biggest, most unbelievable line of giant articulated streamers ever conceived. 30" brown trout don't eat wolly buggers. They eat CATCH Big Boy Streamers.

Certain things break the stillness of dawn unlike any other. The rifle shot taking the first deer of the day. The panic when you wake up during a pee dream wondering if you've soaked the bed. And the violent swirl of a largemouth bass slashing out from behind a lily pad to devour a popper in the early morning light. OK, the first and third things are awesome, anyway. And you don't have to pack the bass 2 miles uphill to the truck on your back, so how about you just grab a box of CATCH bass flies and head to the lake.

BIG MUSKY & PIKE

What do you get when you cross a long-haired yak with unicorn, then breed it with Liberace's third gayest hairdresser? I have no idea. But speaking of big, hairy and flamboyant, have you seen these CATCH Musky flies? All kidding aside, these things are ridiculous. Yes, they weigh as much as half-ton truck and cost about the same as a community college credit, but when you are hunting the biggest most vicious creatures in fresh water, you don't really have a choice but to go big. Well, I guess you could just go home.

SALMON & STEELHEAD

Sad days are upon the steelheaders of the Inland Northwest. Not the usual despair that comes from standing balls deep in slushy water for hours on end waiting for a fish that was never there. But the loss of Boggan's Oasis that burned down last year. So while we shed a tear for never again being able to ask Val "what's in the Trucker's Load," at least we can take solace in the fact that with CATCH steelhead flies, we might actually swing up some steel.

ARTICULATED SALMON & STEELHEAD

There are some brands of people that are just different. They need to suffer. But they are willing to suffer for the reward they seek. The rodeo cowboy who knows he's getting tossed, but has to have the buckle. The guy in the bar that knows that fat girl's boyfriend bought her those fries, but he just has to see if she wants to get to know each other over another basket. And the steelheader that knows he's going to lose his job and alienate his family, but just has to hear the Hardy growl. At CATCH we're still working on how to improve the pickup odds in the Forks bar, but we're pretty sure we've nailed the best way to trade your loved ones and steady income for big chrome.

SALTWATER FLIES

Chalk flights in 60 year old float planes over the open ocean. Blistering sun burns. Fingers raw and sliced open from stripping line. Montezuma's revenge from that suspiciously warm seafood you had for dinner last night. There are a lot of perils involved in saltwater fishing before you even hook up with a fish. And that is where the real danger begins. Whether it's losing a finger to the teeth of a 'cuda or shark, having your knuckles busted by a tuna or dorado, or succumbing to exhaustion after fighting a 200# tarpon for 3 hours on 15 lb tippet, catching a saltwater fish on the fly is a dangerous prospect. But the danger pales in comparison to the thrill, joy, triumph and pride you experience when you land that fish. CATCH has, without question, the biggest and best saltwater fly selection in the industry. No matter where you or your clients are going, or what species is being targeted, CATCH has the right fly for the job.

FLY BOXES

When you are packing around a full complement of the best flies in the world, you can't rely on a box that will flop open at the merest breeze, or fill with water in a light drizzle. You want those bugs locked down tighter than a girls' school across from the state pen. CATCH fly boxes are durable, completely waterproof*, and best of all, come in at about half the price of the competitors. Big margins? Repeat business? Happy customers? Sounds like a good CATCH, doesn't it. From big hopper and streamer boxes, to day boxes for walk-and-wade trips, and everything in between with or without a fly-leaf, CATCH fly boxes are hands-down the best option on the market today.
